Introduction

In keeping with our international vocation, the International Relations and Cooperation Service of Universidad Carlos III de Madrid, in collaboration with the Labor Risk Prevention Service, have prepared this Emergency Situation Action Manual for international exchange students (henceforth IES).

One of the main reasons IES select where they will carry out their studies is the country's safety. Spain is among the countries with the safest countries in Europe, according to Eurostat data, Spain is far from the worst positions in the main type of crime rankings such as homicide, rape and robbery among the European countries.

At present, 20% of all students at UC3M are international. That is why we have prepared this manual, to provide information on certain situations the IES may have to face during their stay at the university. While it is true that accidents cannot be foreseen, their effects can be reduced if we know how to act at every minute. The objective of this manual is to set out general action guidelines when faced with the most common emergency situations.

The specifics of each situation make it complicated to apply the recommendations in this manual literally. They must be interpreted, adapted and applied according to the situation that comes up. However, by reading them, we will know how to handle emergencies effectively and in an organized way, avoiding stressful situations and saving significant resources. Additionally, we can turn to these pages to keep a situation under control and avoid improvised actions.

We hope this manual will not have to be put to use, but should the case arise, we hope it is of great help to our IES.

1.-General recommendations for incoming students

In the first weeks in Spain, and to make acting in the event of possible emergency situations easier, we recommend that incoming IES:

1. Leave a copy of their national ID with someone in your native country who you can contact to avoid problems if the original is lost or stolen.
2. Carry your scanned passport in your cell phone and leave the original at your residence in Spain.
3. Register at your home country's embassy or consulate upon arrival in Spain. Check this directory to find information on yours.
4. Provide the UC3M International Office with emergency contacts (name, telephone number and address), both in Spain and in your native country.
5. Be aware that there are two emergency telephone numbers available 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

2.- Emergencies or crisis situations

Crisis situations may arise both on and off the University campus, requiring totally different approaches to what you should do.

2.1 Emergencies or crisis situations on UC3M campuses

The University's Labor Risk Prevention service provides an open access public information website for the entire university community (objectives, organization, instruction manual and health and safety guidelines, etc.).

2.1.1 Types of emergencies or crisis situations:

1. Need for psychological support.

Arriving at a university in a new country and in different surroundings is a change that international students must face. On occasions this situation may generate anxiety or worry which require specialized help.

The Psychological and Educational Psychology Guidance Service of UC3M assists students to successfully overcome any difficulties or problems they may encounter throughout their time at the university. Different self-help resources based on student interests are also available.

A student may request a personal appointment with a psychologist for counseling and assistance. Additionally, courses and workshops to improve students' abilities are organized throughout the school year.

Locations:

- Getafe Campus: Services Building (building no. 2). Ground floor.
- Leganés Campus: Betancourt Building (building no. 1). Office 1.0.1.02C
- Colmenarejo Campus: Miguel de Unamuno Building. Office 1.0.A09

The first appointment is free of charge and may be scheduled by calling 91 856 12 19, or by going in person to the Information Center on campus.

In order to make a second appointment with the psychologist and to see him/her as many times as needed during the course requires a single payment of 25€. This can be done in person at the center or through the following link: Psychological and Educational Psychology Guidance Service of UC3M. You can also check the office hours in the same link.

New appointment procedure because of COVID-19:

Currently, due to the situation caused by coronavirus, psychological appointments are done online. The procedure to schedule them is still the same for those who are already enrolled. New students need to send an e-mail to: afabasca@pa.uc3m.es

2. Emergency due to illness or accident.

If it is suspected that it could be a COVID-19 case, students must follow the instructions from Section 3.3 from this Manual.

The University has a Health Center on the Getafe and Leganés campuses where international students can go on certain occasions, such as emergency situations, minor accidents, etc. Check the UC3M Health Center webpage name and contact information from his/her doctor, in addition to the information from his/her medical status and treatment, the details and generic names from the medication and the prescribed doses.

In case the student needs to travel with other kind of medical equipment, such as needles, they need to bring the medical prescription that justifies the use of such material, since it can be requested by the officers and security staff at the airport.

2.2.1 Emergency due to illness or accident

Where to go in the event of illness or an accident

A) STUDENTS WHO HAVE A EUROPEAN HEALTH CARD

They can go to any center pertaining to the Social Security system. Normally it would be the one closest to their residence in Spain, but if it is an emergency, then they should go to the closest one.

You can locate the closest medical center or hospital on the following website:

<http://centrossanitarios.sanidadmadrid.org/> (only available in Spanish)

Those students who have private insurance should go to the center designated by their insurance. Alternately, they may go to any public health center or hospital where they will be issued a bill and where they must pay any medical expenses.

3.1 General advice

It is recommended that incoming students check the links below so that before their arrival to Spain and University Carlos III they already know:

1. Spanish airport security and control measures for entrance.
2. Health regulation in Spain and Madrid in the moment of arrival, for instance regarding the mandatory use (or not) of masks.
3. General prevention guidelines both inside and outside the University.

1. Wash hands with soap and water or alcohol-based hand rub frequently.

2. Keep a social distance of at least 1-2 metres between people.

3. Avoid touching eyes, nose and mouth.

4. Cover mouth and nose while sneezing or coughing.

3.2 Entry to Spain

Since July 1st 2020, if you travel to Spain from another country, it is mandatory to fill out the and sign a Health Control Form (FCS for Spanish abbreviation) associated with your trip.

This form is available either in this website <https://www.spth.gob.es> or in the mobile app "SPAIN TRAVEL HEALTH -SpTH", where you can easily get your travel QR code. The form is available in Spanish, English, French and German.

3.3 How to proceed in case of sickness or emergency of COVID-19

If the student has COVID-19 related symptoms, he/she should act as follows:

 - o Stay at home, avoiding any unnecessary contact with the rest of people who live in the same building, and disinfecting the bathroom and the rest of shared areas after each use.

- If you have DIFFICULTY BREATHING and/or WORSENING OF SYMPTOMS:
 - o Call 112.

4.- Notes on the Spanish legal system

Students are advised to have basic information about Spanish laws regarding detention. The following actions can be carried out by the police if they need to identify you or even hold or detain you.

4.1 Identification

If the police stop you, in most cases, the first thing they will do is ask you for your documents so that you can be identified. If you refuse to do so, police will be able to hold you.

You may use any official document as identification (National ID, Driver's license or passport). You may even do so verbally in which case it is helpful to also provide your address, the place where the identification being requested is located and the reason you are not carrying it.

4.2 Being held

In any case, the police may decide to hold you because they do not believe what you are telling them or to check that your documents are valid. In these cases, you must be treated correctly. If not, you can make a formal complaint, and you are under no obligation to answer any questions that are not related to your identification. They can frisk you, and you cannot refuse, but it must be warranted.

4.3 Being detained

If being held leads to being detained, you must be informed of this and read your rights, among which is the right to a lawyer's counsel. In any case, you have no obligation to answer any questions; the change in the status does not oblige you to answer except in the situations mentioned below. Once the process of identification has been completed, you should be released immediately. If you are not, this is an illegal detention. In any case, you will be released, whether retained or detained, from the location where you are at that time. You will not be returned to the place where you were initially retained or detained, nor can you demand it. Rather, you will most certainly be at the door of a police station or courthouse, and you must return by your own means.

It is important for you to know that if you are retained or detained, they may not create any sort of file on you, take any photographs of you or make you take off your clothes or do pushups. If this happens, you may make a formal complaint.

The police are obliged to inform the judge within the first 24 hours that a person has been detained. If they do not, it is a crime and you should make a formal complaint, requesting that the lawyer counseling you during the detention make sure of it. Pre-trial detention cannot last any longer than is strictly necessary to carry out the inquiries to clear up the incident. In a period of 72 hours maximum, the detainee must be released or brought before the judge. However, detention may be prolonged for purposes of investigation, up to a maximum period of an additional 48 hours, if a written request stating grounds is submitted within the first 48 hours and is authorized by a judge within the subsequent 24 hours. Either authorization or refusal will be adopted by reasoned decision.

If the incident is a minor offence, you cannot be detained unless you have no place of residence, have not been identified or do not provide sufficient bail when the acting authority demands it, which in practical terms means that the police do not trust your personal information to be true. All acts punished in Book III of the Penal Code are offences, and they generally refer to incidents with a minor penalty (the most common: threats, insults and injuries where the injured requires no more than one medical visit with no surgery required). In these cases, your identity and address will be recorded, and you will be summoned by the Pretrial Investigation Court later.

All detainees or prisoners will be informed, immediately and in a way that he/she is comprehensible, what the charges are, and why they are being detained, as well as what their rights are. These rights must be read in a lawyer's presence prior to any statement and signatures will be requested of both you and your lawyer, and if an interpreter has been necessary, his/her signature as well. Whether you sign the statement or not is irrelevant; it will be considered valid if a lawyer has been present.

Your rights as detainee are:

- a) The right to remain silent and not make a statement if you do not wish to, to not answer any of the questions you are asked, or to state that you will only declare before a judge. In this case, the police may decide that you will not be able to meet privately with your lawyer because there has been no procedure requiring a lawyer's presence, and so you will have to wait to be taken before a judge to have that meeting.
- b) The right to not testify against yourself and to not confess guilt.
- c) The right to designate a lawyer and request counsel's presence while giving statements in any police investigation or legal proceeding as well as while subject to any identification procedure. If the detainee or prisoner does not designate a lawyer, a public defender will be assigned.
- d) The right to access the proceedings that are essential to contest the lawfulness of the detention.
- e) The right to have a relative or other person of the detainee's choosing informed about the detention and the location where he/she is being held at any given time. Foreigners shall also have the right for their country's consulate to be informed of these circumstances. You do not have the right to a telephone call, as we see in many films, but you do have the right for the police to call the person you designate and inform him/her that you are in custody and where.
- f) The right to communicate by telephone with a third person of the detainee's choice in front of a police officer.

g) The right to be visited by the consular authorities of your country and communicate with them.

h) The right to an interpreter at no cost, when a foreigner who does not understand or speak Spanish is involved.

i) The right to be checked by a forensic doctor or his/her legal substitute and, in his/her absence, by the doctor of the institution you are in, or by any other who reports to the state or any other public administration. You should inform your lawyer if you have requested to see a doctor and have not been allowed to do so. Transportation will be in handcuffs and in the presence of at least two officers. It is important in many cases for you to request a doctor and to tell him/her if you have consumed alcohol or drugs, and if it is possible, for them to perform the necessary tests to prove it, since this will show the condition you are in and in a trial it may be cause for attenuating circumstances to be applied which will reduce your sentence.

j) The right to ask for free legal assistance and get to know the procedure to do so and the conditions to obtain it.
